

Investigation into Dorey disappearance continues

In an old farmyard southeast of Elk Point, fire-scarred pine trees sway above a gaping cement basement ringed by chunks of charred wood, burned out appliances and a misshapen hulk that once was a furnace. Two scoop shovels lean against the cement, beside a quartet of sooty plastic pails. The top of a wooden ladder protrudes from the debris littered cavity. A blue plywood dog house sits near the remains of a porch, and a black and white collie eyes visitors to the scene warily, as he continues his solitary vigil for his absent master. In the driveway, just inside the open metal gate, a plastic sign attached to a wooden stake proclaims that the owner of this property is a member of the local Rural Crime Watch.

Across busy Secondary Highway 646, the oil patch is humming with activity. Just down the road, workers at Westmin Resources cleaning plant are busily improving the approach to their property. Pickup trucks and tankers scurry to and fro, as the workday goes on.

Somewhere near that point, Geoffrey Dorey, 67, was last seen on the afternoon of Tuesday, October 3, as he drove his green, 1974 Ford half with a large round hay bale in the back. In the early hours of October 4, a fire at the Dorey residence was spotted by workers at the Westmin plant, who notified the fire department and RCMP. The home was totally destroyed in the fire, but investigators probing the rubble could not find any indication that Dorey perished in the blaze. His 1984 brown and cream GMC half ton with camper top was missing, and was later discovered abandoned at the Fort Kent Hotel on October

A toppled chimney, a few blackened timbers and the burned out hulks of household appliances are all that remain of the Geoffrey Dorey home southeast of Elk Point. Dorey has not been seen since the day before the fire occurred.

Input is being sought for the Community Centre plan

Community groups and residents of the Town of Elk Point are invited to attend an Open House this week that is designed to garner input for a community services centre development plan.

A facility feasibility study for a proposed new community services centre, which is being done by Randy Conrad and Bart Deeg of Edmonton, will undertake an assessment of the demand for recreation activities within the town. The study will also attempt to determine the specific types of spatial requirements needed for those activities that might be included in the development of the new community services centre.

A number of community groups have already received questionnaires from Conrad and Deeg. A household survey of a sampling of Elk Point residences has also been conducted with approximately 200 surveys having been distributed.

The Open House for community groups' representatives and the general public is scheduled for Thursday, October 26 at 7:00 p.m. in the gym at the Community Services Centre.

Groups or individuals who prefer a private consultation can see Deeg between 2:00 and 4:00 p.m., October 26 at the municipal administration building.

For more information contact Bart at 432-1858 or Pat at the town office, 724-3310.

Deck The Streets...

It's two whole months until Christmas, but the Town of Elk Point is getting set to deck the town out in style. Larry Lecopoy of the Public Works Department was busy last week putting up the brackets for the new decorations the Town has purchased.

Historical Society meets tomorrow

The regular meeting date for the Elk Point Historical Society has been changed, for this month only. The Historical Society will meet tomorrow evening, THURSDAY, October 26, at 7:30 p.m.

in the meeting room of the Elk Point Public Library, rather than on their usual Wednesday meeting night.

Members, please note this change.

New Council is sworn in Elk Point's new Town Council was sworn in Monday night, with Town Administrator Pat Vincent officiating in the swearing in of Mayor Bruce Kleeberger, and the Mayor in turn administering the oath of office to Councillors Morris Cooper, Allan Frankiw, Adele Mandryk, Lawrence Pidluzny and Alvina Schuhmacher.

Councillor Frankiw was elected as Deputy Mayor for the coming six months.

The entire Council swore to uphold the oath of conduct for local government officials, and signed the document attesting to this.

It was agreed to continue meeting on alternate Mondays, with the November 13, December 25, April 16, August 6 and September 3 meetings rescheduled because of the Monday holidays. All of these will be held on the Tuesday following, except for the final meeting of 1989, which will be held Wednesday, December 27. Council retained the 7:00 p.m. starting time for the regular meetings.

Council voted to increase their honorarium for regular meetings to $75 from $65, a 15 percent hike, but left the honorariums for special meetings, extraordinary meetings and functions at $50 and for Board, Committee or Commission meetings at $25. They also left their travel and expense claim rates at the previous level, with this to be reviewed in the 1990 budget process.

The new members of Council were informed regarding various procedures, and were told they will be provided with name tags, name plates for the Council table, and business cards.

Chamber planning for extravaganza

With Christmas just two short months away, Elk Point Chamber of Commerce started planning for their annual Christmas Extravaganza at last Wednesday's meeting. A number of changes from the format of the past 2 years were suggested, including running the event for an entire day, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., rather than from 6 p.m. to midnight, and making it necessary for shoppers to make a purchase to become eligible for the major prize draws, rather than just having their entry form stamped.

Saturday, December 16 has been suggested for the event, as this would be the day traditionally chosen by other groups for pancake breakfasts, kiddies'

Final Meeting For 1986-89 Council

At the final meeting of their three year term, Councillors Alvina Schuhmacher and Allan Frankiw (back row) were joined by Mayor Bruce Kleeberger (front centre) in wishing retiring Councillors Steve Shmyr and Steve Stepaniuk the best in their future endeavors. Two additional retirees, Marshall Kachamar and Ed Buck, were not present for the meeting.

movies and Christmas tree sales, and it was felt the Extravaganza would compliment the efforts of these groups by bringing additional people into town to take part.

Further planning for the Extravaganza, hopefully with representatives of the other groups in attendance, is slated for the November 1 meeting.

The Chamber filled their vacant Vice President's chair, with Dave Yake applauded for his decision to take over the post recently vacated by Bill Tremblay. The Chamber now needs a new secretary, as Donna Brooker, who has been serving in that capacity since the resignation of Gail Kozicky, will no longer be available for lunch hour meetings.

New Recreation Coordinator Stephen Montgomery was on hand, and was introduced to the Chamber.

Larry Demchuk reported on the Health Care Connection held in Edmonton late last month, where he represented the Chamber. He said it was 'a unique experience' and of a much higher quality than he had expected. Many of the 40 display booths, including some from towns our size and smaller, were 'quite impressive' and Demchuk suggested that Elk Point should look toward putting together a more attractive display for such events in the future. He agreed to head a committee to look into preparations for a display, with the assistance of Sid Holthe.

Victor Stepa reported on the Chamber's part in Information

Night, which he felt was worthwhile, and suggested the Chamber continue to be involved in future Information Nights.

The Fort George-Buckingham House Advisory Board will be meeting with the Minister of Culture at the end of October, Frank Mayner reported, and will present a brief asking for further funding to continue restoration of the forts at that time. The group recently looked at sites for development to be done with the balance of the $1.8 million committed in 1988, and Mayner noted that this planning had been done with an eye to future development at the sites. Some of the work will be completed before the celebrations take place to mark the 1992 bicentennial of the forts, Mayner said.

Clues sought in Dorey disappearance

ned residence on October 19 by investigators has resulted in the location of some skeletal remains. Because of the nature of the debris left after the fire, investigators had to manually sift the material. Efforts to identify the remains which were located are continuing.

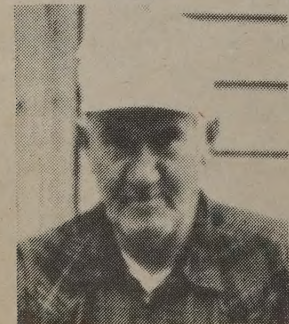

The origin of the bale of hay seen in Dorey's truck has not been determined. It is believed that he purchased the bale earlier on October 3, however it is not known where or from whom it was obtained. Investigators would like to speak to anyone who has knowledge of this sale or who may have seen his 1974 Ford that day.

Additionally, investigators would like to speak to anyone who may have seen his other truck in the Fort Kent area before it was recovered October 10.

Geoffrey Dorey is described as 67 years of age, Caucasian, 173 cm. in height, 77 kg., and was last seen wearing a brown cowboy hat, plaid jacket, new jeans and cowboy boots. Foul play has not been ruled out to date.

It is requested that anyone having any information concerning the whereabouts of Mr. Dorey, or anyone who saw either of his trucks, contact the nearest RCMP detachment.

Elk Point to host mini Telerama

The very excited Elk Point Ukrainian Dance Club has just announced that they have been chosen to host an Associated Canadian Travellers Mini Telerama early in the new year.

Activities will kick off with a school dance at F. G. Miller High on Friday, January 26, with the main variety show scheduled for the Saturday afternoon, January 27, also in the FGM gymnasium. Saturday evening there will be a supper in the Elks Hall, prepared by the Ukrainian Dance Club, with a dance featuring County Express, to follow. All proceeds from the weekend will go to ACT Telerama, to help handicapped children.

Clubs and groups from the area will be invited to help with the massive fundraising event, by donating their time to serve supper, take tickets, tend bar at Saturday's dance, and help with the other tasks necessary for a successful weekend. 'We want other groups to get involved, and to help to make this as much a community effort as we can,' said Ruth Vogel, spokesperson for the Dance Club.

Numerous out-of-town people will be on hand for the event, including celebrity entertainers whose names have not yet been released. Entertainment for the variety show will come from a wide area of northeastern Alberta, and there are plans for at least part of the show to be televised.

Funds raised by the ACT are available to help with projects to facilitate handicapped accessibility and to meet other special needs of the handicapped.

Lions Donate To Town...

Doug Bassett of the Elk Point and District Lions Club presents Mayor Bruce Kleeberger with the final $2000 installment of the group's $8000 commitment to the Recreation Land ball diamond development. He also presented $400 toward the Community Services Centre Feasibility Study.

Small Business Week message

By Vicki Brooker

President, Elk Point Chamber of Commerce

A Small Business Week salute to the merchants, entrepreneurs and their staff who in a large part, make up the membership of the Elk Point Chamber of Commerce.

In Elk Point, as in most smaller communities across the province, operations fitting the category of 'small business' form the majority of the business community. Gross income of less than $2 million and less than 100 persons on the payroll are the general criteria for being a small business. Walk down our streets, and you will see that virtually all of our stores and services fit that classification to a T.

This is not too surprising, when you remember that small businesses are responsible for no less than 97 percent of all business done in this province.

That is a mind-boggling statistic, but let's think about it a minute. This

Red Cross needs you

More than ever, Red Cross needs the support of every one of us. To meet this continuing need, Elk Point Red Cross Branch is offering a Bazaar, Bake Sale and Tea, on October 27, Friday afternoon, from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. The United Church has once again kindly permitted the use of their Hall for this event.

The Red Cross Local welcomes contributions of craft articles, baking, and articles for the White Elephant table. Contact Violet McFadyen, at 724-3884, if you need more information. Contributions will be gratefully received.

Do come out and spend an hour or so with your friends at this annual Tea. As well as having fun, you will be contributing to a very good cause - and perhaps carry home a masterpiece of handiwork, made by many painstaking hours and loving care. And certainly, nothing beats the taste of those home-baked buns, cakes, squares and other goodies!

Above all, remember, that every dollar you spend there, goes to the very worthwhile job of alleviating the suffering of our fellow man.

morning you got up out of your bed (probably bought from a local furniture store), made coffee bought at your local grocery store, listened to an almost-local radio station while you made your toast (in an appliance from the local hardware store) from bread from the local bakery. Then you climbed into your clothes (probably from either a local store or a local mail-order office), jumped into your almost-locally-purchased car, checked its gauge for locally-purchased gas, and drove to your local place of employment. At lunch time (or maybe even at coffee break) you headed up the street to the coffee shop, and after work you stopped at the grocery store to pick up some necessities for supper. About to head home, you decided maybe a video movie would be in order for the evening's entertainment, so you altered your route to go past the video store. That's eleven small businesses right there, that have been responsible for taking care of your daily needs and wants—twelve if you work for a small business, too. And most of them were right here in our town.

From the earliest days of our community, when an enterprising shopkeeper decided to locate in the newborn settlement of Elk Point, small businesses have filled most of the needs of the residents. Sometimes, we are told, people find items here that they have been unable to find in other, larger towns, and they have also mentioned our competitive prices and good service. That is really good to hear, and is something our business community wants to go right on hearing.

Every year, a few new businesses open their doors in Elk Point. So far in 1989, there have been seven of these. To date, five of them are growing and thriving, while the other two did not survive. Another established business has recently changed hands. Three businesses established within the last 5 years have closed during 1989.

It takes a lot of ambition, dedication and hard work to start up a small business. It also takes the support of the community to make that business a success. Shopping locally, and dealing with local businesses helps us all by the injection of funds into our local economy, which will help to keep our local stores and services in business so they can fill our needs every week of the year.

Creative child care workshop is planned

A Creative Child Care Workshop, with Alixe Miller, B. A. Psych. as the instructor, will be held on Saturday, October 28 from 9:00 a.m. until noon in the meeting room of the Elk Point Public Library. The workshop is sponsored by the Elk Point Parent Nursery, and will cost $10 per person or $15 per couple, to cover the cost of the speaker.

The topic of the workshop is 'Feeling Good About Yourself and Your World,' and views the topic from both the parents' and child's perspective. Self esteem for both parents and children, parents' and children's feelings and needs, positive discipline, creative problem solving, effective communication, study of human behavior, family meetings, and common problems will be discussed during the workshop, with an opportunity for brainstorming concerns. Handouts will be provided, questions will be answered and helpful books will be recommended. The instructor will be available at the end of the session to hear individual concerns.

For more information or to register, call the FCSS at 724-3800 or Heather Bjornstad at 724-2061.

Welcome, new council

A warm welcome to the new year absence from the reins of members of Elk Point Town Council who were sworn in for their three year term on Monday night, and hearty thanks to those who decided to give another three years to guiding Elk Point into the final decade of this century.

For the two new councillors, Adele Mandryk and Lawrence Pidluzny, this will be a unique experience and an undoubted challenge, as they delve for the first time into the operation of the Town of Elk Point. Hopefully, they will enjoy their involvement with the day to day decisions that help to keep things running smoothly and to progress in keeping pace with the needs of the residents.

For Morris Cooper, it will be like coming home, after a three year absence from the reins of public office. There will be some changes during that time to be coped with, but these should present little problem for a veteran councillor with many years of experience.

Happy Halloween

The witching hour is coming. from between parked cars, take extra care when pulling in or out of driveways.

Only six days from now, the streets will throng with little spooks and gremlins, out for their annual foray of collecting goodies. Are we ready to make sure that their pilgrimage will be a safe and happy occasion, rather than a time of nerve wracking concern for parents and for motorists?

Drivers, are you prepared to be aware of the unexpected? Turn on your headlights at the first sign of dusk, drive slowly, especially in residential areas, and watch for children darting out Halloween comes in many faces — the fiercer the better.

Day of saints, night of spirits

By Irene Magnusson

As we all know, October 31st is a wonderful day, the main wonder of it being that any notice is taken of it at all. Halloween, the night of the Hallows, or evil spirits, the evening before All Saints Day.

In modern times, a lot more attention is paid to the event of the 'spirits' than to the hallowing of the Saints. I thought it might be fun to look up the origins of the events, and the reasonings behind them. Here is some of what I found.

In my modern dictionaries and encyclopedia, very little mention is made of Halloween. Oh, it's there, but merely says "the night before All Saints Day" - leading one to believe the important event is indeed the All Saints Day, when, by turning to the "A's", we find "All Saint's Day, November 1st., feast of Roman Catholic and Anglican churches, to glorify God, and thank him for all the Saints, and martyrs, known and unknown." Massive eating is always a good way to celebrate anything, hence the feasting. Roman Catholics, it says here, are also obliged to hear a Mass on this day.

In the Greek Church, we are told, this Saints Day is observed on the first Sunday after Pentecost (which is a Jewish festival occurring fifty days after Passover (also called Shabuoth) which is also called Whitsunday). Backtracking, we find that Pentecost falls on the seventh Sunday after Easter, when the Holy Ghost descended upon the apostles.

The word 'Shabuoth' means 'feast of weeks', 'Pentecost' literally means 'weeks'. Then we come to 'Whitsunday', which is observed seven Sundays after Easter, and is so called for the custom of all newly baptized persons wearing white robes on that day.

Now these are the "mid-history" reasons for marking the Oct. 31st-Nov. 1st passages. The OLD days had other reasons. Ancient Druids, who occupied England and elsewhere in the times before the invasions of the Romans, worshipped trees among other things, believed that all the spirits of the dead returned to their former owners on the night of what became October 31st, called forth by their master, Saman.

Dead things were notoriously considered evil, (still are, I guess) so to ward off these evil spirits which came to visit their dead bodies, Druids habitually lighted huge fires, keeping them burning all through the night, until daylight, when it was considered the evil spirits had slunk back to their dark domain for another year.

While evil spirits were being put on the run, it was only fitting to look forward to the coming of the year ahead, until next time the menace hovered, so predictions were made as to what the new year would hold. (Probable predictors were witches, who abounded in those good old days.)

The Celts, who also lived in those days, held the belief that spirits of the dead came to visit their earthly homes, on that same night. Along came the Romans, who added the worship of their goddess of tree fruits, Pomona, on November 1st. I expect this faded away, as the celebrations were extended to honor All Saints, and they threw in martyrs and unknown saints for good measure, so no one would feel slighted, perhaps, - and turn into an evil spirit?

In Scotland and Wales, bonfires were employed until recent years, for the same purpose, that of discouraging evil spirits.

In the United States, and in England, games and ceremonies involving fruits have continued - and progressed into such activities as bobbing for apples, kids screaming "Halloween Apples!", and the construction of jack-o-lanterns from pumpkins, lighted and carved to resemble some pretty unfriendly faces.

Nowhere, in dictionary, encyclopedia or fact book, is any mention made of the origins of the "begging" syndrome which Halloween means to young and old today - or should I say, tonight? I can see the 'tricks' part of our common today-observance of Halloween, the almost overpowering urge we humans feel to 'wear the shoe' if it fits - or to make it fit, if at first it does not.

Worship Saints? Why, sure. Fear Evil Spirits? Why not? And if none are to be found, what's wrong with creating a few pseudo-evil spirits, to liven things up - and prove to people that their fears were not in vain? What's a little Cain-raising matter, everyone expects it, after all - it's Halloween, when the evil spirits are allowed to roam at will, vandalizing the neighborhood and, occasionally, committing mayhem.

More fuss is made over Halloween, the stores carry more junk, masks, candy, costumes, bags, plastic pumpkins, etc., etc., than the occasion really warrants. We try to placate the little 'spirits' with apples, candy and balloons. We dress them up elaborately, parents drive them about, party them; paint them, feed them. It's probably a great day for the kids - but how come? How did all this rigamarole develop, without a word in our dictionaries, beyond "see All Saints Day."?

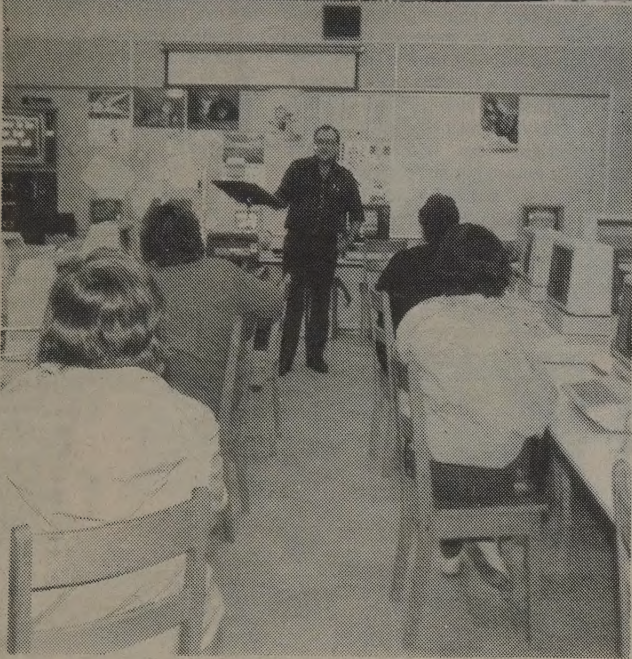

Somehow, I doubt that anywhere near as many Saints are brought to mind Nov. 1st, as Evil Spirits saluted on Hallows Eve. If you hear rustling wings overhead late Oct. 31st, it may be me, flitting back to my cave.

Spooky Storytime

The Kelp

By Charles R. Magnusson

The boat must have been adrift for a few days. The sky was clear and only a mild breeze was playing on the sea water.

Johnny was a lonely boy of fifteen. His father, a fisherman, spent most of his time in his small boat out on the sea. The catch, being poor this year, meant Johnny couldn't go to camp with his school friends who lived on the mainland near the boarding school which Johnny attended.

It was the sixth day since Johnny's father went to sea a-fishing. His mother was busy baking bread. He spent the morning reading at his favorite place, high up on an outcrop of rocks, where he could see almost anything on the beach or at sea in front of him. This morning's book was exceptionally good and he didn't look up until his stomach told him it was nearing noon. It was time to head for home, a half-mile away.

As he looked up, he saw his father's boat coming slowly toward the rocky shore below. It bounced from one large rock, then another, and came to rest in the shallow waters.

Johnny knew there must be something wrong. He called to his father as he ran to the boat, but received no reply. Was he asleep? Hurt? Sick? Other thoughts ran through his mind as he quickly climbed aboard.

He looked in the cabin, the engine room, the storage room, and even in the fish hold, where a small catch was seen. His father was nowhere to be found. All the nets and fishing gear were in place. There was no sign of a storm - in fact, the waterline ring of scum wasn't disturbed. On the port side of the deck, Johnny found a mound of kelp which looked very moist. He lifted it with a pole and put it in a large plastic container. Then he put the fish in another. After anchoring and securing the boat, he went home to report the incident.

An all-out search was made by the Coastal Patrol during the next few days but Johnny's father was not to be found. No fisherman along the coast had seen anything unusual.

Johnny's father was known to drink some, when he got depressed. The conclusion was that he had gotten drunk aboard his boat, fell overboard and drowned.

The remainder of the summer was a very lonely one for Johnny and his Mother. They sold the boat, but later had to go on Welfare.

When fall came, Johnny went back to school. His mother sold the house and went to live with her sister in a nearby town on the mainland.

As they were packing to leave, Johnny noticed the container of kelp. He decided to give it to the chemistry professor to examine, since it still appeared unusually moist looking.

There was a lecture in class the day Johnny brought the kelp, so nothing was done about it. Johnny set the container in the lab and went to class.

When the professor didn't show up the next day, no one thought anything of it. The following day, when he was again absent, the principal phoned, but got no answer.

Everyone knew enough to stay out of the Chemistry Lab, even the janitor, but Johnny decided to look anyway. He glanced around. Why was the kelp lying on the floor? He mentioned it to the principal, who sent for the janitor to remove it.

The janitor was very busy and always in a hurry, so he didn't bother to look for gloves or tongs to remove the wet, slimy-looking kelp from the floor. As he picked it up, a fluid sprayed on his hands. He was surprised, then shocked as the smell of acid filled the room. The man screamed and fell to the floor.

Within seconds the skin on his hands was gone. The kelp crept over the writhing janitor, dissolving him as it went, before the horrified eyes of the principal and Johnny. Very soon, there was no more screaming, in minutes there was no sign of the man - only the slimy kelp, quivering and moist, lying there in an apparently lifeless form, waiting for its next meal of human flesh.

Mouse burger and bug juice anyone?

By Billie Milholland

I grew up to the refrain, "Eat your turnips, there are children starving in China." I would have gladly sent all of my yukky vegetables to those hungry children, but now that I am older, I know that root vegetables are not what the world's hungry require. Starving people need protein. The need for protein is not restricted to third world countries; the food banks in our own cities plead for peanut butter, tinned fish and powdered milk to try to meet the growing need. It is speculated that if every person on the globe could afford to buy as much protein as they required, there would not be enough protein to go around.

Clearly, we lack imagination and ingenuity to solve this problem. We are surrounded by protein that is going to waste because we are too narrow minded to take advantage of what is available. To start with, we often feel overrun with insects which we believe are interrupting our lives. Insects are a good source of protein. The idea to most of us of eating deep fried grasshoppers or chocolate coated bumble bees, is at best, a joke and at worst, abhorrent. But, we wouldn't have to confront these creatures directly. There are animal body parts that go into wieners, bologna, sausage and other processed meat that we'd rather not discuss. We could just as easily not discuss grubs and caterpillars as we used some nutritious form of their numerous little bodies. We could par-boil them, dry them and powder them and mix them with cocoa for a high powered protein beverage. Packaged properly, our junk food oriented children would gulp it down with enthusiasm. If they love to be slimed, why wouldn't they go for 'bug juice'?

Much of the world will pay a premium for escargot, so why not slugs? They are very numerous and they have no shells. Protein is all around us just going to waste. Think of the buckets of earthworms that could be gathered after each rain; the barrels of grasshoppers that could bring financial hope to drought-stricken farmers.

There are other protein-rich creatures who are low on the popularity scale. Everyone loves to hate rodents and they certainly multiply vigorously. Shouldn't take a lot of ingenuity to sterilize, grind and dry. Super Mouse protein powder. Put a weight-lifting ninja mouse on the package and half your marketing problems are over. Golf course gophers would have a reason to be. Our grandmas and grandpas remember eating rabbit and squirrel stew with no ill effect. I'll admit that erasing the image of the Easter Bunny and Chip'n Dale from our minds might pose a challenge but we could work on the low cholesterol angle and throw a little oat bran in the recipes. Hamsters and gerbils could be ranch-ed in every closet. Sunday dinner multiplying under the bed. This is not an original idea. In South America, roast guinea pig are common dinner fare and in parts of Africa, rodents as large as dogs sell for more than beef, and are cheaper to feed per pound.

In fact, there are very respectable restaurants in the Mid-western States where muskrat is on the menu. If we are too squeamish to confront this dining experience directly, we could turn everything into jerky or sausage or sandwich spread.

Statues in major cities could be liberated by pigeon pie, sparrows and starling could be transformed from nuisance to nourishment. And if our pampered North American minds can not adjust to such a departure from our normal cuisine of burgers 'n fries then let's feed bugs and mice to our chickens and pigs and use the valuable soya protein that we feed them for our selves. The globe is not really protein poor, we are just short on imagination.

History On Video...

Mike O'Neill presents a copy of the videotape of the official opening of the original Elk Point Bridge, with the postscript of its subsequent replacement almost 40 years later, to Diane Fraess of the Elk Point Library. Production of the video was funded by the Elk Point Historical Society.

Mega Carrots...

These massive carrots are the pride of Phyllis Pankiw's garden southeast of Elk Point, and were brought to our attention by John Smith. The Pankiw carrot patch yielded a number of the giant vegetables, many of them showing the multi-rooted characteristics of these examples.

Jackpot Winner...

Margaret Gadwa was the lucky winner of the $875 jackpot at last week's Elks Bingo. Don Brooker of the Elks Lodge makes the presentation.

Soil Conservation Initiative

Permanent Cover Program

The Permanent Cover Program is a component of the three-year $34.8 million Canada-Alberta Soil Conservation Initiative.

The purpose of the program is to reduce soil deterioration on high risk lands presently in annual cultivation.

Under Option 1 of the program farmers receive $20 per acre as a one-time payment for seeding perennial forages on eligible land. Although under no legal obligation, farmers are encouraged to keep these lands under forage.

Under Option 2, eligible landowners receive the $20 per acre payment under Option 1 plus a one-time per acre bid payment. The bid payment is for entering into a 10 or 21 year agreement to keep lands under permanent cover.

Producers wishing to enter into Option 2 contracts must apply prior to December 1, 1989. Those who wish to seed forage this fall (Option 1) are urged to apply immediately.

Application forms are available from Municipal Offices, Alberta Agriculture District Offices and PFRA District Offices. Completed applications must be returned to your local Municipal Office.

Busy hands, busy minds

By Irene Magnusson

The hands of the Elk Point Red Cross Branch were kept busy, on Monday, October 2, as ten members of the active group gathered in the United Church Hall, and quickly made the many stitches and knots required to cause a number of bits of cloth, a batt and a bit of yarn to turn into a cosy warm quilt, ready for sale or disaster relief.

Mrs. Violet Smith had donated the pieced top, while Chairman Violet McFadyen and Secretary Margaret Modin set up the frames ahead of time, ready for the 2:00 p.m. gathering. The United Church Hall was kindly donated for use by the Church Board.

As the busy fingers made short work of a tedious task, the minds of the ladies present were also thinking and planning for the coming Tea and Bazaar. When the last (almost) knots were tied, the tacks and pins removed, with yet another quilt ready for hemming, the ladies got down to the business of the day. As this was the first meeting of the fall season, June reports were given. Taken by stand-in Hazel Hannah, reports were read by secretary Margaret Modin. These showed the group has taken part in the Seniors' Information Day, held June 9, offering information and a display of work in the Elks Hall. Later, an Information Night in the FCSS Building was attended, with again, displays and information. Both were attended by McFadyen.

Donations of lovely hand-made baby sets and afghans were received over the summer, chiefly from Mary Moorehead, of Elk Point. The final canvassing report showed a total of $8,541 collected in the Elk Point and District areas, for which the Region (or Zone) received an Achievement Award of a silver medal. The groups' contributions to the CreaTions effort was also awarded. Red Cross Volunteer pins for 10-years-plus service were awarded to Audrey Lorenson and Lucille Smith, by McFadyen, with many thanks for work well done.

Suggestions were made for encouraging more members, such as 'each member bring a friend,' and the hopes that holding the meetings in a more public place, such as the United Church Hall, might encourage more participation.

The Fall Bazaar and Tea then received full consideration, the date set for Friday, October 27, time 2 to 4 p.m., the place, the United Church Hall. Tasks were allotted, articles needed were volunteered. In the practiced, familiar routine of planning, all the required details were apportioned, according to the offers made.

Since the Tea has long been a major group fundraiser, it is hoped there will be a goodly offering of crafts, baking, white elephant articles, etc. from anyone interested in promoting the work of Red Cross, which is life-giving and life-saving, and entirely a volunteer service to mankind, as always a demonstration of the great deal of good which can be accomplished by willing hands, perhaps individually weak, but together very strong.

Canada Day '90

Poster contest

OTTAWA - Secretary of State Gerry Weiner announced recently the launching of the 1990 Canada Day Poster Contest. Twelve provincial/territorial winners, accompanied by their parents, will be hosted by the Secretary of State, on behalf of the Government of Canada, at the official Canada Day ceremony on Parliament Hill in Ottawa on July 1st.

In referring to the contest, the Minister said: "1990 marks the 25th anniversary of the Canadian Flag, which is perhaps the most visible and cherished symbol of our nation. Canadians will reflect on what our flag represents to each of us as we celebrate not only our national day, but also the privilege of living in such a free and tolerant nation. By encouraging our youth to participate in this contest, we hope that they will come to a greater appreciation of our symbols and their importance in further strengthening our collective sense of pride and belonging."

The contest is open to individuals 18 years of age and under. One winning national entry will be selected from the twelve provincial/territorial winners and become the official poster for the 1990 Canada Day Celebrations across the country.

All entries must be postmarked before midnight, December 1 and be mailed to the nearest office of the Department of the Secretary of State, attention "Canada Day Poster Contest". The Alberta office is located at Canada Place, 9700 Jasper Ave., Room 200, Edmonton, Alberta T5J 4C3.

The 1990 contest is sponsored by Canadian Airlines International, which will fly the winners and their parents to and from Ottawa for the ceremony, and the Chateau Laurier Hotel, which will provide all accommodations.

CHUBEY
In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Pauline Chubey, who passed away October 29th, 1988. She never failed to do her best, Her heart was true and tender, She toiled hard for those she loved, Then left them to remember. At early morn, when all was still, God gave His great command; In silent peace she passed away, Into the Better Land. Always remembered and sadly missed by Husband, Harry and children, Marie, Michael and Connie.

What's news at the library?

We don't know about you, but the library is expecting to see witches, goblins and ghosts at their storytime on Friday, October 27 at 10:30 a.m. This is a reminder to all parents about the upcoming Halloween party for the preschoolers and hope to see you or your goblin friends at the library.

New Videos:

A new selection of videos are available for our patrons to take out. The National Geographic once again takes you into the fascinating world of the animal kingdom. These 60 minute videos will transport you to Africa with "African Wildlife" and Australia, with "Australia's Animals".

Two classics starring Bette Davis are: "The Little Foxes" and "Jezebel". Her performance in "Jezebel" won 1938 Best Actress Academy Award.

"Scarves: Tie Into A Great Look" - enhance your wardrobe with over 25 beautiful ways to tie scarves.

"One of a Kind" Volume I - is a breakthrough in children's education and instructional programming. The One of a Kind message is designed to help children accept themselves as special people as well as to give them information on ways to live healthier, happier and more productive lives.

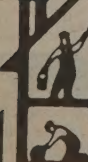

"Baby Vision" - a parent's helper, Baby Vision offers your baby a buffet of subjects that entertain, stimulate and pacify, as well as provide a positive environment with educational values. Recommended for ages 9-36 months.

New Books:

"Bandits and Privateers" by Harold Horwood - This sequel to the popular "Pirates and Outlaws of Canada" continues the colourful survey of violence in Canada from the time of the earliest pioneer to the years preceding World War II.

"The Further Adventures of slugger McBatt" by the well known author, W.P. Kinsella - This is a delightful collection of baseball stories about diehard fans, crusty veterans, would-be diamond heroes and baseball as a boyhood bond. Also by W.P. Kinsella, "Red Wolf, Red Wolf" - a collection of humorous stories.

First meet of season for Pioneer Circle

By Irene Magnusson
The first Board meeting of the season was called by the executive of the Pioneer Circle for Tuesday, October 10. Board members gathered in the seniors' hall, at 2:00 p.m., with Chairman Mike Palinka in charge. Minutes of the Sept. 12 General meeting were read by secretary, Grace Barwick. It was learned that the Development Grant, on request, has been extended for an additional two years.

Treasurer Olga Ruzycki gave the financial statement, which shows a good balance; however, some confusion results from having so many accounts in the bank. Some suggestions to move the funds to saving accounts were offered, with Ruzycki offering to look into this.

Members were urged to make the $100 donation each, toward the Building Fund, as there still seems to be a good chance that some moves toward a new building can be hoped for.

Phyllis Zarowny gave a report on happenings regarding the Building Grant and offered some forms the group could distribute, which would help the government representatives to better gauge the wants, needs and desires of the residents of Elk Point. Several members offered to do this work, as the results are required by Friday, Oct. 13.

In correspondence, an announcement of the ACA Forum in Cold Lake was read; a questionnaire received, as to why the occupancy of the Heritage Lodge was so low; and two small books were received, apparently as a gift.

Floor curling is coming up soon, and it was suggested a special meeting be held to discuss this, with those interested in the floor curling programs to attend.

Mrs. Zarowny had a form, requested by Town Council, to be filled out regarding the needs and wants of the Seniors, regarding the size and type of building that would suit them best, and have room for the activities they wish to partake in. Past activities were listed, with a projection of the coming years' needs. It was noted that membership has fallen down a bit. Building Committee members will attend the Town Council meeting, Oct. 26.

With a promise to discuss the Christmas plans at the November meeting, which would be November 14, at the regular time of 2:00 p.m., the meeting was adjourned at approximately 3:30 p.m.

Do two fives make ten?

By Irene Magnusson

It is unusual and newsworthy enough when a family can boast five generations, gathered together for a visit, but when you find TWO sets of five generations in one family, and they can all gather for an October feast - well, that IS something to celebrate Thanksgiving for.

In the beautiful home, in Elk Point, of Lloyd and Ruby Hanna, on Thanksgiving weekend Sunday, that is exactly what happened.

In photo #1, the youngest and most important member of this family, Phillip Durocher, age 1 year, perches dubiously in the arms of his mother, Mrs. Hannah Durocher of Tulliby Lake. In the centre is Hannah's mother, Mrs. Darlene Brind, also of Tulliby Lake, where she and her husband farm, and raise their three daughters. Darlene's father, Lloyd Hanna, who is a mechanic and semi-retired oilman, of Elk Point, stands next, flanked by his mother, Mrs. Lee Hanna, the great-greatgrandmother to young Phillip. Mrs. Lee Hanna makes her home in the Vermilion Valley Lodge, where she retired, after farming in the Islay area and raising a family of five.

Mrs. Romanchuk, a retired schoolteacher, makes her home near her daughter Ruby, where she continues to keep busy with crafts and family. She and her late husband had farmed at Greenlawn, and later lived for some time at Heinsburg, before moving to Elk Point.

Lloyd and Ruby Hanna spent the years from 1972 until 1985 in Fort McMurray, where he was engaged in the Heavy Oil industry. Ruby keeps herself occupied now, as then, with numerous crafts, decorating her home beautifully with them, as well as making them for sale. Ruby finds more time for crafts, now that her six children are grown, but she enjoys their visits, along with their eleven grandchildren, and, of course, young Phillip, the first greatgrandson.

The family gathering, when the photos were made, celebrated Darlene Brind and her husband's wedding anniversary and Ruby Hanna's birthday, as well as the Thanksgiving observation. Congratulations to all concerned!
